Albania only recognizes part of their population as "Macedonians"; only those Christians living in the southeast (not the Macedonian Muslims and Christians living in the eastern highlands or Gorans). Bulgaria, in 1999, recognizes the existence of the Macedonian language, but Macedonians have renounced support for the Macedonians living in Bulgaria. Greece still does not recognize Macedonia as an independent or separate nation or ethnicity. Religion and language play a major part in the distribution of Macedonians within their country. (1)

The differences of distribution of weath has increased since 1991, which may also be a result of urban versus rural populations. Ethnicity is more important than class, however. (1)

Macedonia used to be primarily rural, but today is more than 60% urban. 25% of the residents live near the capital, Skopje. The urban areas are characterized by a historical center with an open bazaar. (1)

In February 1999, violence in Kosovo brought over 10,000 refugees into Macedonia. By March and April, the numbers reached hundreds of thousands, putting a large strain on Macedonia's resources. In 2000, the net migration was -0.83 migrants per 1,000 population. (2)

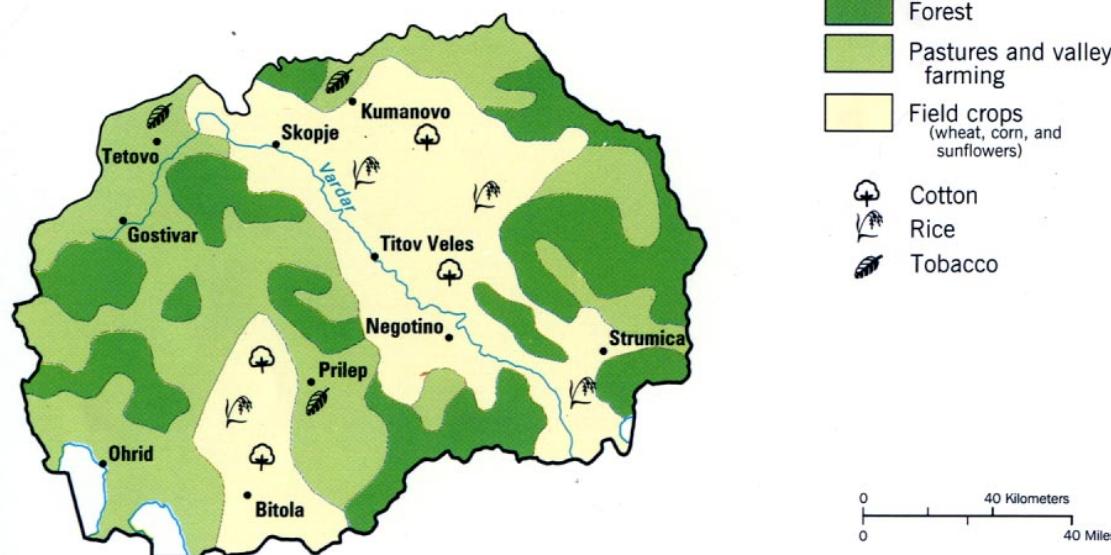

Family Establishment and Reproduction

Traditionally, marriages were arranged although now couples are free to choose their own partners. Teen pregnancy among urban youth often leads to marriage as well. The traditional family unity is the married couple, their sons & spouses, and unmarried daughters. This is becoming less common now, and children generally move out once they are married. (1) In 2004, there were 13.14 births and 7.83 deaths per 1000 population. The total fertility rate was 1.74 children/woman. Average life expectancy is 74.73 years. (3)

Today, the language spoken is Macedonian. Surrounding countries, such as Greece, refused to recognize Macedonia as an independent country and people. As a result, some Macedonians still identify with other countries and call themselves "Macedonian Bulgarians", for example. The majority of people, however, still claim to be purely "Macedonian", as their ancestors before them were, dating back to Alexander the Great. Greece still argues that Macedonians are actually Greeks, and there is conflicting evidence. For more information on this conflict, visit Macedonian-Greek Conflict.

The Macedonian economy was traditionally agricultural and pastoral. Now, the economy has been industrialized and integrated with international trade. Major crops are sugar beets, cotton, rice, tobacco, grains, livestock, fish, hardwoods. Major industries include steel, cement, mining, textiles, petroleum products, furniture making, and pharmaceuticals. In 1996, unemployment was at 38.8%. (1)

Government/Social Institutions

The government is a parliamentary democracy. Political parties follow ethnic lines. Since the communist period, the legal system still is not completely revised, thus there are some social problems. The military is small, with outdated equipment. (1)

There is social welfare for needy families, and pensions for retirees. Both genders work outside of the home, but it is the woman's responsibility to take care of domestic labor. Men dominate in engineering, and women in the humanities. The status of men and women is technically equal, but men typically have higher status and women manage the household duties. The representation of women in power is not proportionate to their numbers. There is modern medicine as well as folk healers. (1)

Climatic/Weather Systems

There are three general climatic regions in Macedonia:

Changed Mediterranean Climate: Gevgelija-Valandovo ravine, Dojran, and Strumica-Radovis ravines; also as far north as Skopje

- Long, Dry Summers
- Mild, Rainy Winters- snowfall rare in these areas
- Fall: longer, warmer
- Spring: shorter, colder (2)

Mountaneous Climate: the mountaneous regions

- Long, snowy winters
- Short, cold summers
- Temperature varies with elevation (lowest temps at highest elevations)
- Highest yearly precipitation in the country; decreases toward the east (2)

Mildly Continental Climate: Most characteristic of Macedonia, covers the largest area

- Cold, humid winters
- Warm, dry summers

- Temperature and precipitation vary in regions due to different latitude and elevation (2)

Wildlife includes European Bison, fox, Brown bears, and deer in the valleys between hills. There are ducks, turtles, frogs, raccoons, and muskrats inhabiting the waterways. Inland fishing occurs in Lake Ohrid, Lake Prespa, and the Vardar River, and includes primarily trout, carp, and bream. (2)

1916
1918
1919
1920	Revived under the name Internal Macedonian Revolutionary Organization (IMRO)

The VMRO sought liberation for Macedonia. According to Hadzhinikolov's memoirs, there were five principles:

1. The revolutionary organization should be established within Macedonia and should act there, so that the Greeks and Serbs couldn't label it as a tool of the Bulgarian government.
2. Its founders should be locals and living in Macedonia.
3. The political motto of the organization should be the autonomy of Macedonia.
4. The organization should be secret and independent, without any links with the governments of the liberated neighborly states, and
5. From the Macedonian emigration in Bulgaria and the Bulgarian society, only moral and material help for the struggle of the Macedonian revolutionaries should be required. (1)

Tartarchev described the goals of the VMRO as follows:

"We talked a long time about the goal of this organization and at last we fixed it on autonomy of Macedonia with the priority of the Bulgarian element. We couldn't accept the position for "direct joining to Bulgaria" because we saw that it would meet big difficulties by reason of confrontation of the Great powers and the aspirations of the neighbouring small countries and Turkey. It passed through our thoughts that one autonomous Macedonia could easier unite with Bulgaria subsequently and if the worst comes to the worst, that it could play a role as a unifying link of a federation of Balkan people. The region of Adrianople, as far as I remember, didn't take part in our program, and I think the idea..." (1)

Gruev's memoirs described the goals as:

"We grouped together and jointly worked out a statute. It was based on the same principles: demand for the implementation of the Berlin Treaty. The statute was worked out after the model of the Bulgarian revolutionary organisation before the Liberation. Our motto was "Implementation of the resolutions of the Berlin Treaty". We established a "Central Committee" with branches, membership fees, etc. Swearing in for each member was also envisaged. In the regulations there was nothing concerning the Serbian propaganda but we intended to counteract it by enlightening the people."

The underlying goal was to end the Macedonian oppression by the Ottoman Empire. The VMRO split into left and right-wing groups at the beginning of the 20th century, but came together again during the Balkan Wars. Following the wars and the partitioning of Macedonia, the organization maintained its existence and its leader (Todor Aleksandrov) wanted another war to liberate Macedonia. The organization supported the Bulgarian Army during the first World War, and managed to drive out Serbian forces from the Vardar part of Macedonia." (1)

Treaty of Bucharest

PEACE TREATY OF BUCHAREST (10 August 1913)

TO THE RELATIVELY brief text of this treaty were appended three protocols concerning the frontiers of Bulgaria, which had been defeated in the Second Balkan War. The third of these protocols referred to Greece, which at the end of the War had acquired Crete¹ and Kavala. The northern frontier of Greece was defined as extending from the north of Korytsa, between Monastir and Florina, to Doiran, then south of Strumitsa, Petrich and Nevrokopi, to the mouth of the Nestos (Mesta).

The Peace Treaty of Bucharest was the outcome of the conference convened after the conclusion of the Second Balkan War, on the initiative of King Carol of Roumania.² Bulgaria lost the greater part of Macedonia, whose territory was divided between Greece and Serbia. During the conference, the Bulgarian delegates at times adopted an attitude that was seen as provocative by the other participants, given that Bulgaria had been the aggressor and was, moreover, the defeated side. There were also times, however, when they were strikingly conciliatory. This was because Bulgaria hoped that the Great Powers would revise the treaty, a hope encouraged by both Austria and Russia. France and Germany were opposed to such a revision, while Italy and Britain were prepared to accept it only if it was unanimously agreed upon. The European Powers were wary of the possibility of further unrest in the Balkans.

The delegations were headed at the conference by their respective Prime Ministers; Greece was represented by Eleftherios Venizelos, Serbia by N. Pachic, Roumania by T. Maiorescu and Montenegro by S. Voukotic, whilst defeated Bulgaria was represented by Finance Minister D. Tontchev.

Through the Treaty of Bucharest, the territory of Greece doubled in size³ and its population increased by some two million, reaching 4,718,221 inhabitants.⁴ Although this expansion could have been considerably greater, it was significant as it included sources of wealth, providing the conditions for industrialisation and economic development. It also improved Greece's international standing. With its special position in the network of Balkan relations and in the balance of political and military power in Europe, the modern Greek state acquired an unprecedented role.

ROUMANIE , GRECE , MONTENEGRO, SERBIE, BULGARIE.

Monténégro, Sa

Majesté le Roi de Serbie et Sa Majesté le Roi des Bulgares, ainsi qu'entre Leurs

ARTICLE II.

Entre le Royaume de Bulgarie et le Royaume de Roumanie, l'ancienne frontière entre le Danube

et la Mer Noire est, conformément au procès-verbal arrêté par les Délégués militaires respectifs et annexé au Protocole No 5 du 22 juillet (4 août) 1913 de la Conférence de Bucarest, rectifiée de la manière suivante:

La nouvelle frontière partira du Danube, en amont de Turtukaïa, pour aboutir à la Mer Noire au Sud d'Ekrene.

Entre ces deux points extrêmes, la ligne frontière suivra le tracé indiqué sur les cartes 1/100.000 et 1/200.000 de l'état-major roumain, et selon la description annexées au présent article.

Il est formellement entendu que la Bulgarie démantèlera, au plus tard dans un délai de deux années, les ouvrages de fortifications existants et n'en construira pas d'autres à Roustchouk, à Schoumla, dans le pays intermédiaire, et dans une zone de vingt kilomètres autour de Baltchik.

Une commission mixte, composée de représentants des deux Hautes Parties contractantes, en

nombre égal des deux côtés, sera chargée, dans les quinze jours qui suivront la signature du présent

Traité, d'exécuter sur le terrain le tracé de la nouvelle frontière, conformément aux stipulations précédentes. Cette commission présidera au partage des biens-fonds et capitaux qui ont pu jusqu'ici appartenir en commun à des districts, des communes, ou des communautés d'habitants séparés par la nouvelle frontière. En cas de désaccord sur le tracé et les mesures d'exécution, les deux Hautes Parties

contractantes s'engagent à s'adresser à un Gouvernement tiers ami pour le prier de désigner un arbitre dont la décision sur les points en litige sera considérée comme définitive.

ARTICLE III.

Entre le Royaume de Bulgarie et le Royaume de Serbie, la frontière suivra, conformément au procès-verbal arrêté par les Délégués militaires respectifs et annexé au Protocole No 9 du 25 juillet (7 aôut) 1913 de la Conférence de Bucarest, le tracé suivant:

La ligne frontière partira de l'ancienne frontière du sommet Patarica, suivra l'ancienne frontière turco-bulgare et la ligne de partage des eaux entre le Vardar et la Strouma avec l'exception que la haute vallée de la Stroumitza restera sur territoire serbe; elle aboutira à la montagne Belasica, où elle se reliera à la frontière bulgaro-grecque. Une description détaillée de cette frontière et son tracé sur la carte

1/200.000 de l'état-major autrichien, sont annexés au présent article.

Une commission mixte, composée de représentants des deux Hautes Parties contractantes, en nombre égal des deux côtés sera chargée, dans les quinze jours qui suivront la signature du présent Traité, d'exécuter sur le terrain le tracé de la nouvelle frontière, conformément aux stipulations précédentes.

Cette commission présidera au partage des biens-fonds et capitaux qui ont pu jusqu'ici

appartenir en commun à des districts, des communes, ou des communautés d'habitants séparés par la

nouvelle frontière. En cas de désaccord sur le tracé et les mesures d'exécution, les deux Hautes Parties

contractantes s'engagent à s'adresser à un Gouvernement tiers ami pour le prier de désigner un arbitre

dont la décision sur les points en litige sera considérée comme définitive.

ARTICLE IV.

Les questions relatives à l'ancienne frontière serbo-bulgare seront réglées suivant l'entente intervenue entre les deux Hautes Parties contractantes, constatée dans le Protocole annexé au présent article.

ARTICLE V.

Entre le Royaume de Grèce et le Royaume de Bulgarie, la frontière suivra, conformément au

procès-verbal arrêté par les Délégués militaires respectifs et annexé au Protocole No 9 du 25 juillet (7

Entre ces deux points extrêmes, la ligne frontière suivra le tracé indiqué sur la carte 1/200.000 de l'état-major autrichien et selon la description annexées au présent article.

Une commission mixte, composée de représentants des deux Hautes Parties contractantes, en

nombre égal des deux côtés, sera chargée, dans les quinze jours qui suivront la signature du présent

Traité, d'exécuter sur le terrain le tracé de la frontière conformément aux stipulations précédentes.

Cette commission présidera au partage des biens-fonds et capitaux qui ont pu jusqu'ici

appartenir en commun à des districts, des communes, ou des communautés d'habitants séparés par la nouvelle frontière. En cas de désaccord sur le tracé et les mesures d'exécution, les deux Hautes Parties contractantes s'engagent à s'adresser à un Gouvernement tiers ami pour le prier de désigner un arbitre

dont la décision sur les points en litige sera considérée comme définitive.

Il est formellement entendu que la Bulgarie se désiste, dès maintenant, de toute prétention sur
l'île de Crète.

ARTICLE VI.

Les Quartiers généraux des armées respectives seront aussitôt informés de la signature du présent Traité. Le Gouvernement bulgare s'engage à ramener son armée, dès le lendemain de cette signification, sur le pied de paix. Il dirigera les troupes sur leurs garnisons où l'on procédera, dans le plus bref délai, au renvoi des diverses réserves dans leurs foyers.

Les troupes dont la garnison se trouve située dans la zone d'occupation de l'armée de l'une des

Hautes Parties contractantes, seront dirigées sur un autre point de l'ancien territoire bulgare et ne pourront gagner leurs garnisons habituelles qu' après évacuation de la zone d'occupation sus-visée.

ARTICLE VII.

L'évacuation du territoire bulgare, tant ancien que nouveau, commencera aussitôt après la démobilisation de l'armée bulgare, et sera achevée au plus tard dans la quinzaine.
Durant ce délai, pour l'armée d'occupation roumaine, la zone de démarcation sera indiquée par

la ligne Sistov-Lovcea-Turski-Izvor-Glozene-Zlatitza-Mirkovo-Araba-Konak-Orchania-Mezdra-Vratza-Berkovitza-Lom-Danube.

ARTICLE VIII.

Durant l'occupation des territoires bulgares les différentes armées conserveront le droit de réquisition, moyennant paiement en espèces.

Elles y auront le libre usage des lignes de chemin de fer pour les transports de troupes et les approvisionnements de toute nature, sans qu'il y ait lieu à indemnité au profit de l'autorité locale.

Les malades et les blessés y seront sous la sauvegarde des dites armées.
